Akorri Selects the SyberWorks Hosted Learning Management System for Sales, Technology Partner, and End-User Product Training

Waltham, Massachusetts – October 21, 2008

SyberWorks, a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, announced today that Akorri, Inc. selected the SyberWorks Hosted Learning Management System (LMS) to provide channel sales, technology partner, and end user product training for their BalancePoint Cross-Domain Performance Management Software for the virtualized data center.

Paul Marichal, Vice President of Customer Support and Services, states, "Akorri implemented the SyberWorks Hosted LMS so we could transition from in-person, hands-on training to worldwide online training. Online training is an efficient way to support our broad and rapidly expanding, global training needs.

> "We are using the system for product training for customers and sales, plus installation certification for channel partners. Akorri chose the SyberWorks Hosted Learning Management System because it is scalable, cost-effective, and has additional functionality that we can take advantage of as our company grows."
Marichal continues, "Since deploying SyberWorks, we have been able to quickly transition from in-person, hands-on training to online training, and to significantly reduced both the time and cost of training end users and channel partners."

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks, states, "Today, customers, partners, and resellers are demanding more from the products and services corporations provide. Technology and manufacturing companies, plus businesses in many other value-added sectors, are using the SyberWorks Hosted LMS because training and support are vital to the proper use and performance of their products and services. The SyberWorks Hosted Learning Management System is a great, cost-effective solution for companies that must provide value-added services due to the system's scalability and robust feature set."
