SyberWorks e-Learning Podcasts: Episode #21: Tips on Using Flash in e-Learning Development

Waltham, Massachusetts – June 24, 2008

SyberWorks, Inc., a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, today announces the next episode in their e-Learning Podcast Series: "Tips on Using Flash in e-Learning Development."

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks, states:

> "Today's podcast is an interview with Al Lemieux, Senior Designer at SyberWorks, about using Flash for e-Learning development. In this episode, Al discusses highlights from his article, such as Flash's built-in SCORM and AICC compliant templates and output tips."

Boggs continues, "Flash is a popular e-Learning development tool, with many capabilities. But it can be difficult to use without training, especially training about action scripts. Al's article also offers a lot of great information about other useful Flash features for developing online training content, such as animations, audio integration, course navigation, creating simulations, video, quiz templates, and more." Mary Kay Lofurno, Director of Marketing at SyberWorks, narrates the series.
