

e-Learning Lingo Podcast Defines “Key Performance Indicators”

Waltham, Massachusetts – October 18, 2007

SyberWorks, Inc., a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, today announces the next episode of the e-Learning Lingo Podcast Series about a tool used in performance management, Key Performance Indicators.

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks, states:

“This week’s episode of the e-Learning Lingo Podcast series looks at a tool organizations use to measure and achieve their goals by both defining and monitoring progress. Key performance indicators are agreed upon by the organization and are measurable indicators designed around success objectives.”

About The e-Learning Lingo Podcast

The e-Learning Lingo Podcasts are created by SyberWorks, Inc. as a free service to academia, and a resource to the e-Learning industry at large. Each week, the e-Learning Lingo Podcast Series discusses one or two important terms used by professionals in the e-Learning industry. The e-Learning Lingo Podcast focuses primarily on terms used in e-Learning, Performance Management, and Human Capital Management. The podcasts themselves are very brief and are designed for busy executives or students who don’t have a lot of time.
