

SyberWorks partners with Linktivity to offer integrated web conferencing features in the SyberWorks Learning Management System

Waltham, Massachusetts – September 13, 2005

SyberWorks Inc., a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, announced today that Linktivity's WebDemo 4.0 Web conferencing software will be integrated into SyberWorks Training Center Learning Management Systems (LMS).

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks, states:

“Our decision to partner with Linktivity is a direct response to increasing customer demands for custom Web conferencing capabilities built into our LMS products.”

Boggs continues, “We wanted a Web conferencing solution that could be a powerful addition to our LMS product suite. Linktivity’s product is easy to install and use across our servers, and offers an integrated feature package to augment the SyberWorks Training Center Learning Management System.”

Bob Goldschneider, Director of Business Development at SyberWorks says, “SyberWorks is a mature, upper-tier provider of custom e-learning solutions and learning management systems. Linktivity is a mature, upper-tier provider of Web conferencing technology, so there is a lot of synergy in terms of our companies’ respective market positions and customer base within each of our specific markets.”
