

SyberWorks announces partnership with Vital Learning, Inc.

Waltham, Massachusetts – March 16, 2005

SyberWorks, a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, announced today they have entered into a reseller agreement with Vital Learning Corporation to sell their exclusive Supervision Series, a web based-training selection of already developed, online courses featuring subjects such as managing complaints, coaching job skills, delegating, and more.

Dave Erdman, CEO of Vital Learning, Inc., says:

“Our Supervision Series offers some of the best Leadership learning solutions in the industry. The Supervision Series curriculum provides web-based training with learning activities and tests in some of the most critical skills needed to be an effective manager such as communicating, leadership, communicating up, delegating, developing performance goals and standards, managing complaints, improving work habits, providing performance feedback, resolving conflicts, supporting change, effective discipline, and more! We are excited about having SyberWorks as one of our content distributors.”

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks states, “Many of our prospects and customers want already developed content in subjects that can be universally used in most business settings such as health and safety training, supervision training, computer training, soft skills, HR related topics like sexual harassment, and others. SyberWorks has been working steadily to build a network of web-based training content providers that offer best of breed online courseware across various areas of subject matter expertise. We are thrilled with the opportunity to be offering Vital Learning's Supervision Series to our customers and prospects and look forward to working together.”
